Park and recreation agencies provide high-quality, engaging youth programming. In these settings, park and recreation staff, after school administrators, youth sports coaches, camp counselors, seasonal staff and community volunteers play an important role in supporting our young people. While park and recreation staff are committed to creating positive environments for youth, they may not have the foundational skills or confidence to promote positive youth development. Join NRPA for an interactive workshop to build SEL, DEI, and youth development skills to ensure youth in your programs feel valued and supported. This training opportunity is appropriate for all youth-serving professionals in parks and recreation.
